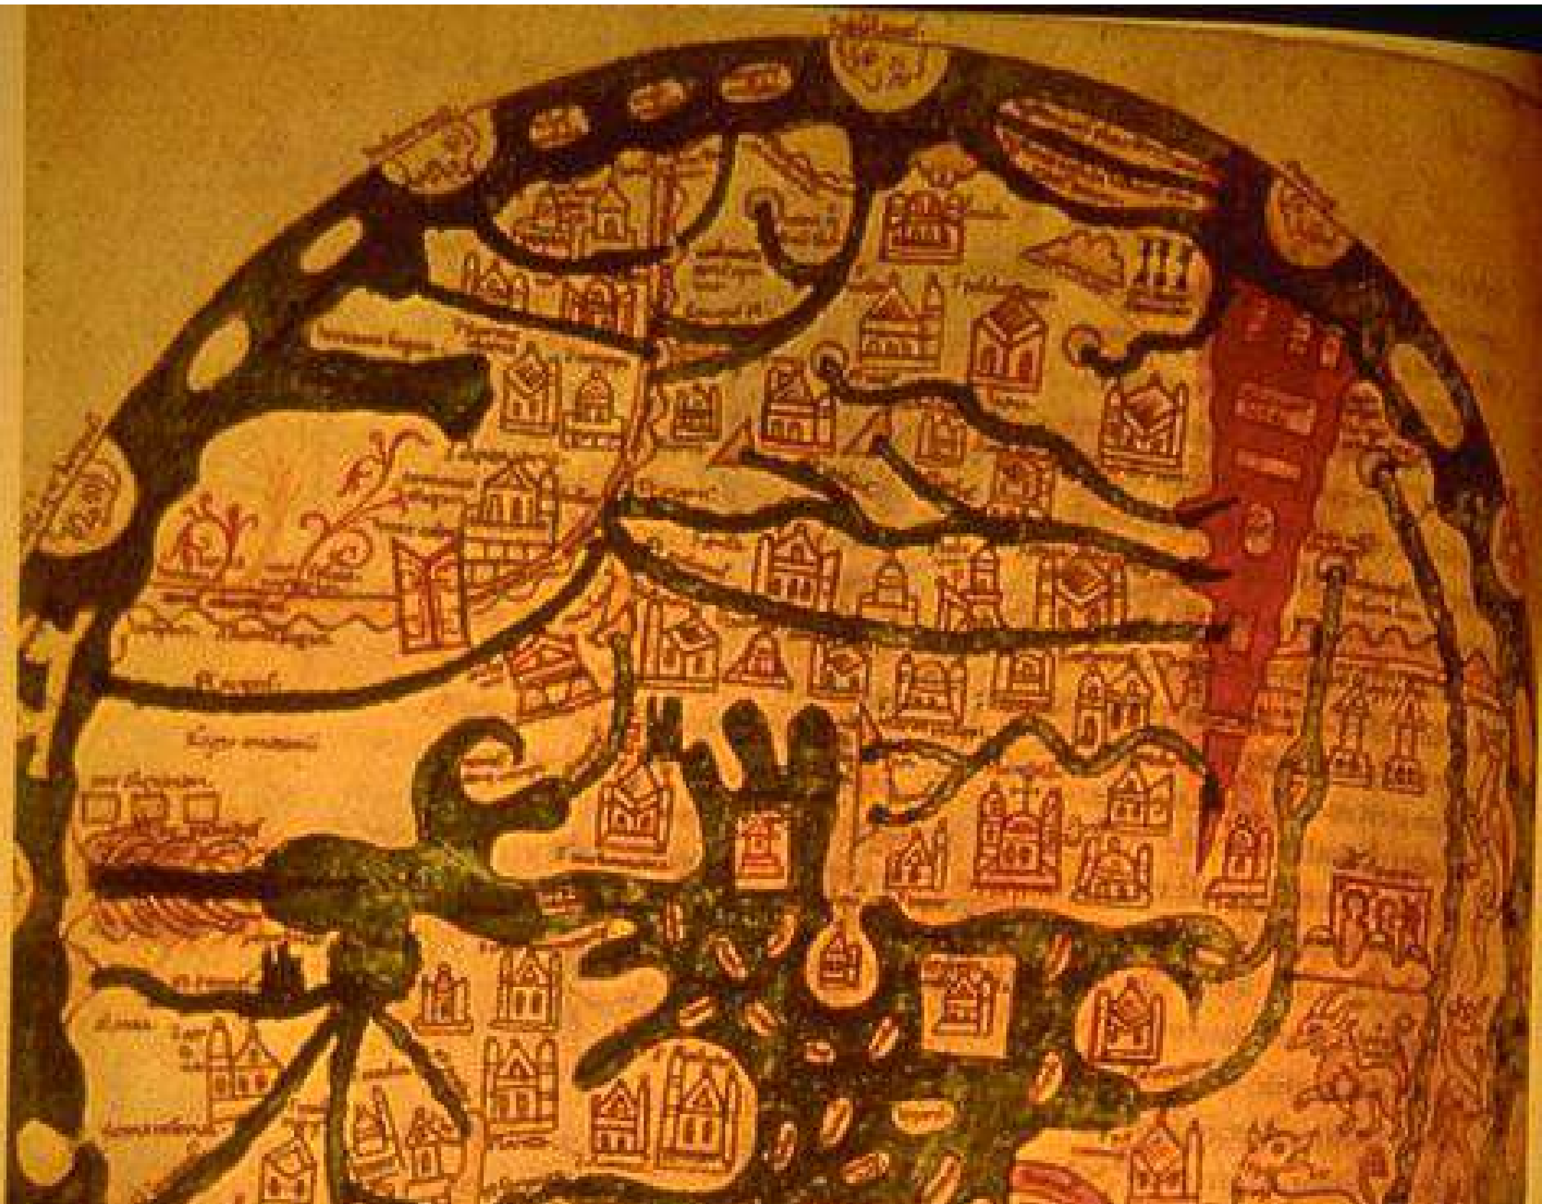
De Asia & eius partibus Ca. iii.

Asia ex noie cuiusdã mulieris est appellata· que apud antiquos imperiũ orientis tenuit. Hec in tercia orbis parte disposita· ab oriente ortu solis· a meridie oceão· ab occidũo nostro mari finitur· a septentrione meotbide lacu & tanai fluuio terminatur. Habet autem prouincias multas et regiones· quarũ breuiter nomina et situs expediam· sumpto initio a paradiso ¶Paradisus est locus in orientis partibus constitutus· cuius vocabulum ex greco in latinum vertitur ortus. Porro



De orbe.

Orbis a rotunditate circuli dictus, quia sicut rota est. Unde brevis etiam rotella orbiculus appellatur. Undique enim oceanus circumfluens eius in circulo ambit fines. Divisus est autem trifarie: e quibus una pars Asia, altera Europa, tertia Africa nuncupatur. Quas tres partes orbis veteres non aequaliter diviserunt. Nam Asia a meridie per orientem usque ad septentrionem pervenit.

Europa vero a septentrione usque ad occidentem. Atque inde Africa ab occidente usque ad meridiem. Unde evidenter orbem dimidium duae tenent, Europa et Africa, alium vero dimidium sola Asia. Sed ideo istae duae partes factae sunt, quia inter utramque ab oceano mare magnum ingreditur, quod eas intersecat. Quapropter si in duas partes orientis et occidentis orbem dividas, in una erit Asia, in altera Europa et Africa.
